The particulars are as follow -On the day previous, a flock of some 7,000 sheep, which had been travelling for some weeks, arrived at the yards, in charge of Mr. M. Fisher M'Michael, the unfortunate victim On the day of the murder, the deceased centleman and his drovers had been engaged drafting preparatory to the sheep being removed to a distant part of the run, and were in their camp waiting for supper. Mr. M'Michael had stipped to the waist in order to wash the dust from his person, and was in the act of stooping over the vash basin, whon he was deliberately struck from behind by the cook, known as Ah Sam, a Chinaman, with an exe, the blow making a frightful gash on the left side of the back bone some four inches in length. M'Michael immediately staggered and fell on his back, exclaiming, "O! my God." Whilst in the act of falling the murdower aimed two more blows, which fell on the deceased's breast, but the latter were partially warded off by Michael Kelly, one of the drovers, who pulled the murderer to the ground, and, with the assistance of another drover, securely bound him with a rope. M'Michael was immediately placed in bed and assiduously attended by Mr. Jolly, but the poor fellow gradually sank and died about 10. The prisoner was securely chained in the men's but at the station. He exhibits little remorse, and seems to be laboring under the halucination that if he had not killed M'Michael the latter would have killed him. Deceased was

A gentleman named Dennis McCarthy, residing in the city of Limerick, who has just sucseeded in establishing his claim to an enormous fortune acquired by a relative in India as an onium merchant, is already beginning to experience some of the inconveniences of being a millionaire. The property he has acquired is stated o se of the value of four intilions, independently of considerable landed property. His friends are finding him out so fast that the number of letters left at his house every day is between 500 and 600. Relations, connections, and wellwishers are turning up in brigades, and Mr. M'Carthy is obliged to employ a shorthand writer and a secretary in order to answer his correspondents. Many of their applications are of au amusing description. Putting out of the question appeals for help on behalf of charities schools, new churches, and so forth, the number of private griefs and sorrows poured into the sympathetic ear of the millionaire is quite perplexing, and if attended to would soon convert even Mr. Dennis M'Carthy into a pauper. As illustrations of the description of annovance to which an unhappy millionaire may be subjected. it may be stated that a lady addresses him on the subject of her approaching marriage. She states that she is engaged to an admiral, but that a hitch has occurred with reward to the settlements and that a "loan" of $2,000 is imperatively required to complete the happiness of two loving hearts. Another lady, who describes herself as a counters, residing at a villa with an imposing name near Milan, encloses her carte devisite, pleads a British ship NYASSA, 792 tons, to London sudden mishan which £50 can repair, but without which suicide is the only alternative. The portrait is that of a very charming woman, and she puts her ease in such moving terms that some fortitude will be required to resist her demands. Compliance, however, would involve very serious donsonnences. If it were once to bocome known that such a mine of wealth as the Irish millionaire were to be tapped under the pressure of impending suicide, every impecunious countess from the Arno to the Tiber would be down upon Mr. Dennis M'Carthy, and his life | American ship F. B. FAY, 789 tons, Iloilo to would become a positive burden to him. Possibly an announcement in the newspapers that Mr. M'Carthy was about to make a tour of the world and would be absent for a comple of years would put his assailants off the scent and give

The most remarkable case in which I have been concerned, not even excepting that of Victor Townley, was the case of Constance Kent, who murdered her young brother, and escaped detection. After an interval of several years, a truly conscientions motive led her to confess, and the most painful and interesting duty fell to my lot of examining her for the purpose of secertaining whether it would be right to enter the plea of "not quilty on the ground of insanity." I was compelled to advise against it, and her counsel, Mr. (now Lord) Coloridge, on reading the notes of my examination admitted that I could not do otherwise. By her own wish, and that of her relatives. I published a letter in The Times, describing the material facts of the crime, but, to have the feelings of those who were alive at the time. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully sealing such hoxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a chitbook or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to whether the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office: the omission of the fermer, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps.

The attention of owners, agents, and charterers of steamers is drawn to the provisions of The Post Office Ordinance, 1876, which comes into force on the 23rd instant. Under the old Ordinance no notice was required of the departure of a vessel if not advertised, nor of departures for Canton or Macao.

Notice is now required of any departure, though with regard to sailing ships, the old rule will practically remain in force, that notice need not be sent unless asked for. Section XXV. requires that the first notice be sent to the Post Office. In the case of steamers plying regularly or on fixed days, notice of any change in the day or hour will be sufficient. Stamped correspondence may still be sent on board any vessel after the Mail is closed at the Post Office.

The Postmaster-General takes this opportunity of calling the attention of firms to the fact that any such words as Despatches will close at 11 A.M., added to the advertisement of a vessel are illegal. Consignees' letters are exempted by law from passing through the Post Office, but no person is allowed to make collection of such letters for transmission under a quality of £100 per week during which the practice continued.

This world is a wrotohed invention-· And Life is a fearful mistake? Our Heart strings are strained to such tension . At almost a tough they will break. The Rich of the earth are hard hittors When Poverty's "running a much." And everything's flavoured with bitters.

Because I am "down on my luck." I entered for "stakes" in Life's races. And thought I should certainly win : I scorned the idea of "places"-

MR, SAMUEL MORLEY AT HALL

Broad shouldored, bright eyed, and square headed: Mr. Samuel Morley is an admirable representative of the good old Puritan stock on which have been grufted the largerhearted principles of modern times. As a philanthropist and a vigorous exponent of the rights and protonsions of Dissenters, he was known throughout the length and breadth of Puritan England for at least a quarter of a century before he eat in the House of Commons. . During that period his mouth and his purse had been frequently opened in the cause of charity and of the equal rights of all citizens before the law. But while he entered Parliament his language on politico-theological subjects was influenced, perhaps, overmuch by his immediate surroundings, and took the bitter tinge of sectarianism.' An every day man, gifted with a strong constitution, the faculty of speaking to large assemblies, and immense wealth, would probably have failed to emancipate himself from the swaddling-clothes of his sect, and would have remained to the end of his career the mouthpiece of his party. He would have been content to be the representative of the industrious, wealthy, and powerful Nonconformists who with all their solid virtues comfew attractive qualities.
